

Brian El Dorado releases new single Acid Rain from new album Songs From The Stairwell.

BRIAN EL DORADO

SONGS FROM THE STAIRWELL

On May 31, 2026 Acid Rain, the first offering from Brian El Dorado's seventh album - Songs From The Stairwell will be released on streaming services. The album is almost exclusively a solo effort. El Dorado says,

"After completing six previous studio albums with my band The Tuesday People and a few EP's I felt the urge to do something different. I had been singing in between call outs on my downtime on shift and found the stairwell space both cathartic and acoustically rich".

Songs From The Stairwell exemplifies El Dorado's creative search and willingness to experiment. The stairwell itself is full of a deep and rich natural reverb that Andy and Brian were able to capture with microphones placed over 3 levels. Brian says,

"It was a crazy idea, but I was on annual leave from the service and not working. Andy was out here from LA. If anyone was going to pull this off it was Andy, so we gave it a shot".

Mixing took place between Los Angeles and Melbourne with producer/collaborator Andy Baldwin (The Cat Empire, Paul Kelly, Bjork, Dark Bardo) and El Dorado in his studio in Melbourne.

This new album for Brian is a leap into a rich, raw and acoustic sound palette. All songs and vocals were recorded live in the stairwell with overdubs and further instrumentation added by El Dorado in post production. All orchestral strings were recorded by Andy in LA and drums in Melbourne by Sean Newell. The full album will be available later in the year.
